

SPECTRE OF BRITISH GRAND FLEET AND BIG DIRIGIBLES MAY INFLUENCE HUNS TO SIGN

Rumors of Exciting Nature As to Movements of Warships Printed.

SENTIMENT IS CHANGING

While Brockdorff-Rantzau and His Associates Oppose Submitting to Allies Majority Socialist Element and Clericals Favorably Inclined.

By Associated Press.

German feeling toward the peace treaty appears to be taking a more favorable trend, although the peace delegation, headed by Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, is represented as decidedly opposed to acceptance of the revised Allied terms. The latest dispatches from Weimar where the German cabinet, and national assembly are considering the treaty reflect a different viewpoint.

The majority Socialists, the present dominating political force in the German republic, are declared in the dispatches to be more favorably inclined toward the treaty than at first, while the Clericals and the Democrats of the left wing are reported to be swinging in the same direction. One report from Berlin represents the people of the capital as resigned to the future, desiring only to see the treaty signed and the suspense ended.

In the meantime, however, rumors of an exciting nature are printed in London newspapers, it being said that the British grand fleet is prepared to sail on short notice for German waters and that British dirigibles are a ready near the German coast if not of German soil.

Only minor affairs are being taken up by the minor officials of the peace conference in the absence of President Wilson in Belgium. Efforts are being made to adjust the railway communication between Rome and Trieste and Vienna to the satisfaction of Italy, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

The conference commission on railways and waterways is endeavoring to arrange for the regulation of railways connecting Rome and Trieste with Vienna so that conditions will be satisfactory to Italy, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. Some agreement is desired before the Austrian treaty is completed but the indications are that the matter will be deferred for decision by the League of Nations.

The council of foreign ministers has been under consideration at present a plan for an inter-Allied commission to administer the Baltic port of Lantz, through which Poland has been given an outlet to the sea. This commission would have jurisdiction until the League of Nations began to function and took over the task.

PRESIDENT TO SEE WRECKED

BRUSSELS, June 19.—President Wilson, who reached the Belgian capital last night after a day's trip from the border which took him through the district devastated by the war, began the second day of his visit to Belgium this morning by motoring to Charleroi with King Albert. The king expected to show the American executive the destruction wrought by the Germans in the mines at Charleroi and supply him with documentary information of the wholesale and systematic destruction practiced by the Germans. A luncheon at the American legation, the appearance of the President before the chamber of deputies and his reception by Cardinal Mercier at Malines were a few of the features on today's program.

JUNE A HOT MONTH

Average Will Be Higher This Year Than in Many Previous.

June, 1919, will have the highest average temperature that has been recorded for that month in a number of years. Almost consistently from the first of the month the mercury has been climbing into the 90 column, going as high as 93 and frequently reaching the 96 mark.

A few hot days were experienced in June last year, but they were not so numerous. For this year, however, hot days are an exception as hot ones were in 1918. The minimum temperature seldom falls below 66 and for a number of nights it remained around 70, which is considered plenty warm enough during the day.

SCOUTS PREPARE TO COMPETE FOR SILVER LOVING CUP

Drill Will Be Held in Connellsville During July; Volunteer Membership Campaign Continues.

The eight scout troops of the city are getting their "crack squads" into trim for the competitive drill to be held here sometime during the early part of July. The best drilled scout will receive a silver loving cup, awarded by the Local Council.

Some of the squads are rapidly developing into well trained units and the drill promises to be of much interest, both within scout circles and outside.

The scouts are permitted to drill under any leader and returned soldiers in some instances are helping to put the boys through the movements. There is quite a lot of friendly rivalry among the various troops to obtain the loving cup which becomes the property of the troop winning it two consecutive years.

In addition to the drills being taught for the July meet the scouts will also be trained in handling crowds. The troops of the city will work under the direction of the safety department during the soldiers' homecoming celebration and the boys are expected to give much needed assistance.

The drive for associate members which is still going on by voluntary enrollment of the men through various stores, designated by cards in the windows, will continue for a few days. The drive has officially closed as a nation-wide campaign but as Connellsville did not get in on the start the last time it will be made up now. There are still quite a number of enrollments necessary to reach the local quota.

DAYLIGHT SAVING LOSSES

Both Houses of Congress on Record as Opposed to the Law.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Doom of the daylight saving inaugurated as a war measure was pronounced yesterday. Congress both Senate and House adopting by overwhelming votes measures to terminate operation of the law when the period of summer time ends next October 26.

The House, following three hours' debate, by a vote of 233 to 132, passed a bill to repeal the law on the last Sunday in next October but rejected an amendment to make the repeal effective at once. The Senate by a vote of 56 to 6, after brief discussion, added a rider to the agricultural appropriation bill providing for repeal of the daylight measure on the same date fixed by the House bill.

The Senate measure now goes to conference with the agricultural bill and the House bill is to be sent to the Senate. It is considered likely the Senate amendment will be finally submitted for the House measure.

This Is Indicated in First Test of Strength in Congress.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Certain defeat for efforts to have Congress exempt beer and wine from operation of the wartime prohibition law was seen in an overwhelming vote of 55 to 11—the first test vote of this Congress—in the Senate late yesterday against an exemption proposal.

By that margin the Senate tabled a motion by Senator Phelan of California to add a rider to the agricultural appropriation bill for application of the wartime prohibition law to distilled spirits alone.

MUCH INTEREST IN PAGEANT FOR THE HOME-COMING

Perry Community Enthusiastic While Uniontown Falls Into Line to Assist in Production.

At a conference at Perryopolis yesterday with members of the Red Cross Mrs. J. French Kerr, general chairman of the women's day feature of the homecoming celebration, found the people of that community enthusiastic over the historical pageant that is to be put on here July 3. In addition to having a team of 55 in line the women of that community will have a chorus. The meeting was held at the home of Miss Lena Galley, secretary of the Perry Red Cross organization. Beate S. Luce, the chairman, was present.

Today Mrs. Kerr is in Uniontown on a similar mission. At a joint meeting in Uniontown of the executive committee of the homecoming celebration and the Uniontown committee appointed last week by Mrs. Kerr to represent her in that city on the pageant committee, it was announced last night that the executive committee has promised the fullest cooperation in the preparation and presentation of the fourth episode of the pageant depicting the progress of Fayette county with the understanding that the Connellsville and Brownsville participants come to Uniontown during the Uniontown celebration and present it there in its entirety.

The fourth episode is Uniontown's own, depicting the visit of LaFayette, Albert Gallatin and their party to this county in 1820 and the celebration accorded them. There will be opportunity for approximately 150 to 200 persons in the cast.

Fayette counties are looking forward with much eagerness to the evening of July 8 when the pageant will be presented. Mrs. Kerr says. The pageant is divided into episodes characterizing the history of successive years beginning with early Indian life in 1650, including the pioneer movement of 1760, the French and English settlers, with Junimoville, George Washington, Wendell Brown, Christopher Gist and other notable pioneers, LaFayette and his train of people when he visited Uniontown in 1820.

AVIATORS KEEP WATCH ON BORDER FOR VILLA AND HIS BANDIT GANG

Reports from Outposts Guarding the Texas Frontier Do Not Indicate Immediate Trouble.

FABENS, Tex., June 19.—Reports from American outposts here today said everything was quiet along the line and no Villa activities had been noted on "the island" or near Guadalupe, where 70 Villa men were seen late yesterday.

The camp fires of the Villa band could be seen all night and the American patrols watch of the border closely to prevent a raid into the United States by the rebels.

As soon as the Villa band was reported to the border patrol base here additional troops were sent here from Fort Bliss by motor trucks and were put into position along the river to repel any possible invasion.

An aeroplane patrol of the border has been established by Major Kober, commander of the 11th Aerial Squadron, of Delahavland bombing planes, which flew here from Fort Sam Houston Tuesday.

INCREASED FURNACE ACTIVITY IN LATE SUMMER OR FALL

Expectations of the Coke Trade Promise to be Realized at Scheduled Time of Improvement.

That the expectations of the coke producers of the Connellsville region that increased furnace activity will begin late in the summer or early fall, are confirmed by the announcement that a considerable number of furnaces in the Mahoning and Shouango valleys will resume operation in August or September.

According to information received from Sharon and Youngstown 19 of the 15 furnaces now idle in the Shouango Valley will be in blast by August 1. At present but six stacks are active. In the Mahoning Valley there are now 17 stacks out of 23 producing iron.

Among the stacks which are expected to blow in during July are No. 3 of the Carnegie Steel company at Farrell; No. 4 of the Carnegie Steel company in Sharon; one stack of the Shouango Furnace company at Sharpsville; and two or three independent furnaces; Byers stack at Girard; one of the Republic Iron & Steel company at Hazelton and No. 2 stack of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company at Hubbard.

With the blowing in of these additional furnaces the output of pig iron will be increased 15,000 tons daily, requiring an additional production of 10,000 tons of coke per day. This will not all come from the Connellsville region as several of the idle furnaces are supplied with coke from their own by-product ovens. A portion of the coke will come from the Connellsville region while increased activity at the by-product plants will call for heavier shipments of coal from which to produce coke.

Unable to secure Grand Chief Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers for the homecoming celebration railroad men have turned their attention to another large figure in the railway world—A. B. Garrettson, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, grand president of the Order of Railroad Conductors. This was announced following a conference of members of the speakers' committee yesterday afternoon.

Present plans call for the appearance of Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, on Monday, July 7.

Nothing has been determined as to the time other notables will come. An effort will be made to have one or more each of the four days.

The company was out on the expedition until about 1 o'clock this morning.

The Company G boys assembled under secret orders at the stuary and went to the hills by automobile. Reaching a "certain spot" they descended and proceeded through the woods on foot in skilful formation. Finally within a short distance of the house they opened fire. The men were all supplied with live rounds of blanks and when firing ceased a detail advanced and entered. The shack had been vacated.

ONLY ONE DRY MONTH

Expected by Liquor Dealers Who Are Applying for Federal Licenses.

Thousands of liquor dealers are applying for the annual federal license permitting the sale of alcoholic beverages for one year from July 1. Under instructions from Daniel C. Rogers, commissioner of internal revenue, these licenses will be granted at the purchaser's risk, and this circumstance has raised hopes among the dealers that the day of national booze dryness is not as near as they feared.

The position taken by the liquor dealers as expressed by some of their leaders, is that demobilization will be declared completed by President Wilson in August at the latest, and that there they will have at least four months grace before the constitutional prohibition amendment becomes effective in January.

RID THE COUNTRY OF BOLSHEVIKI, DEMAND OF WOOD

Quick Suppression of Radicals Advocated in Philadelphia Speech.

GOV. SPROUL ON JULY 9 OPPOSES ALIEN TONGUES

Only One Language Has Place in the Schools of America, Declares Army Chief to University Students; Advocates Fair Play for Laboring Class.

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—"There is room in this country for but one flag, and that is the American flag. Put down the red flag! It stands for nothing which our government stands for. It is against everything we have struggled for. It is against the integrity of the family, the state, the nation," declared Major General Leonard Wood at the commencement exercises of the University of Pennsylvania at the Metropolitan opera house this morning.

"It only floats where cowards are in power and where democracy has been replaced by mob rule. It represents everything which we want to avoid. These are times of dangerous world psychology."

"The barriers between ordered government and chaos are downed in some nations and trembling in others. Avoid the dangerous doctrine of the hour that is masquerading under the banner of 'Liberal Ideas and Progress.' It is no time now for unthinking action. The world must once more get on an even keel and strive down after the upheavals of the great war. It is time now to keep our feet on the ground, our ideals and purposes high, our eyes on God."

"The experience of the training camps brought out very forcibly the desirability of having but one language in our grade public schools, and that language should be the language of the Declaration of Independence, of the Constitution, of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Cleveland and Roosevelt. It is the language of the best democracy."

"We shall, of course, in our higher schools and colleges require the classics and modern languages for science, for literature, and for art, but in the grade schools below the high schools there should be but one language—that of our own country. Nothing will aid more in establishing a condition of national solidarity, nor tend more to a better understanding of what we stand for and what we have stood for. Have our people speak and think in their own language. We do not want our country to be a Babel of tongues, or, as Colonel Roosevelt put it, 'We do not want America to be a polyglot boarding house.'"

"We must bend our energy to the upbuilding of good business and the economical and intelligent conduct of national affairs. We should adopt a budget system, as it will be more conducive to an economical administration of public business. We must adopt a sound system of conservation in regard to our natural resources, in order that they may be passed on to the generations to come. We should not waste these resources, but make such intelligent use of them as to replace them, wherever possible, so that those who come after us may avail themselves of these same sources of unending wealth and power."

General Wood declared himself in favor of fair dealing for labor and higher salaries for teachers. Speaking of immigration he said:

THE SOISSON.

"NEVER SAY QUIT."—One could not exactly blame him for failing to attend his aunt's funeral. The jinx got in his way. But a will is a will, and poor Jones lost a fortune on account of it. This is only one of the mishaps that befalls Reginald Jones, the hero of "Never Say Quit," which showed at the Saison theatre yesterday. From the beginning to the end of this William Fox comedy had luck tags at the heels of poor Jones and gets him into a multitude of funny scrapes. George Walsh, the star of the picture, thinks nothing of scaling walls and jumping from housetop to housetop in his efforts to dodge the jinx. But it is all in vain. Crooks empty out his pockets, just the same, and friends turn out to be his enemies. He meets with one disaster after another on his ocean voyage after sunken treasure. When one of these disasters becomes his wife, he thinks he has done with the jinx forever. But even that is not to be.

interesting title of the entertaining and unusual new World picture which will introduce Zena Keefe to picture patrons as a World star. It is a delightful, fascinating comedy drama and tells the story of a young heiress who is pestered at great numbers of relatives, who make life miserable for her. She decides to run away from them and in running away she runs right into a love affair. "An Amateur Widow" is showing at the Paramount theatre today. The story of this picture was written by Joseph Franklin Poland, who has penned some of the biggest screen successes of the day. He has written a corking good picture in this production and one that is particularly fitted to Miss Keefe's beauty and astuteness. In the role of the young girl who masquerades as the widow of a man who is supposed to have committed suicide and who later turns up she has a role that calls for a lightning of technique and a sureness of comedy values in which she particularly excels.

dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper
and also the local news published herein.WHEN THE OBLIGATIONS WILL BE DISCHARGED.The interest which the National War Work Council has had in the service men has not been limited to providing for their comfort and well-fare while in the training camps or during the tour of duty at the front and in the rest areas following the signing of the armistice.During demobilization there is quite as much need for helpful assistance as there was earlier. This is along lines that differ from the work done in behalf of the men while preparing for or actually engaged in campaigning against the enemy, but in its way it is equally important.In changing from a soldier to a civilian there are many steps to be taken in order that the service man
may secure all the possible advantages it is the desire of the government; he shall secure as part compensation for the sacrifices he has made, and in order that he may be better fitted or equipped to take upon the duties and responsibilities of civilian life. There are the important matters of securing the bonus to which service men are entitled, travel pay,
back pay, allotments and allowances,
compensation, adjustment of insurance, discharge papers, service records, Victory buttons and stars. Of no less interest and value in relation to the future is making arrangements for men who wish to profit by the provisions made by the government for their vocational education,
while concerning the immediate needs
of the men is the question of securing employment.In order that all these things, which are vital to the service men in the resumption of their relations and duties as civilians, may be properly looked after a special secretary has been assigned to the local Y. M. C. A.
He will devote his entire attention to the needs and wants of discharged soldiers in these particulars giving them the benefit of expert advice and all without cost or charge.Never before in the history of nations or wars have such splendid provisions been made in behalf of men who have served their country in times of need. That so generous treatment of them is possible is due,
in large part, to the splendid support accorded agencies which gave so unselfishly of their services and means in ameliorating the hardships and stress of war training and duty. Service men have a proper appreciation of the many things done to relieve suffering of some of its irksomeness.
They no doubt will just as readily realize that the government and the various organizations devoted to their interests do not consider their obligations fully discharged until the men who gave up the activities of civil life
to become soldiers are fully equipped to return to the places they vacated,
there to resume the responsibilities
and to enjoy the privileges of citizenship.

A BIG JOB.

Quite the largest job ever undertaken by the Republican party is the reconstruction of conditions left by the Democrats when the Republicans took control of the American Congress in both branches.The country is burdened with the greatest debt in its history, and to solve the many problems is demanding the intelligent devotion of every Republican in Congress.The Republican leaders of the country are confident that their party's policy will not only solve all the confusing problems now in their care but they realize that business must have sympathetic help, industry encouraged and labor amply protected.In reviewing the important work now before Congress and the many evils brought upon the country by Democratic incompetency, Senator
Penrose has very properly said:
"The most urgent work for the Republican party is to suppress discontent. In the readjustment of business both the wage-earner and the wage-payer must be considered. The criminal element, given to spreading disorders, must be driven out, and many of the burdens now pressing upon the people of the country must be lifted.
The Republican policy of protection and prosperity must be put into force.
A budget system must be provided and rigid economy must be compelled in every branch of the government.""Billions of good American money have been wasted. It was entirely proper to finance the war in the most substantial way, but the war is over and the cost of living must be reduced.
The job, of course, is a big one,
but it is not too big for the Republican party."The reading public has the privilege,
if it may be regarded as such, of renewing the acquaintance of Helen Mc-Tearney Boyle.As the Home-Coming Celebration
will be quite the biggest event Con-nelville ever held it is complimentary to the big speakers to be asked to grace the occasion by their presence, enlighten the people by their wisdom and thrill them with their eloquence.The courts have made the discovery that leniency in cases of willful violations of the law against thefts from railroad cars is no more a deterrent than leniency in the case of other offenses.The Thompson sale contract seems to require almost as much examination
and scrutiny as the terms of the peace treaty.There is every indication that this will be "Women's Day" at Harrisburg.It will disparage the reputation of nons of the "big" speakers to say that Colonel "Joe" Thompson, leader of the 110th Infantry, would be about the biggest attraction the speakers' committee can secure for the Home-Coming Celebration.Caranza is showing rather more wisdom than expected by regarding the crossing of the border by United States troops as a closed incident.Germany has apparently reached the last card in the deck.In describing Postmaster Burleson
as "an administrative misfit" the American Federation of Labor convention used a term that may prove to be an uncomfortably close fit.Friends of Villa in the United States are urging him to continue the war on Caranza but without reprisals on the citizens of the United States. Better leave this to General Erwin and his doughboys who so recently gave the greater battle a demonstration of their ability as urges.Germany is still advertising for a boat to sign the peace treaty."Remove Burleson" is assuming the proportions of a popular song.Making Tariffs a Legislative Function

By Jonathan Bourne, Jr.

A member of the United States
Tariff Commission advocates a law which will "authorize the President to levy by proclamation additional duties on goods which are being systematically dumped into the United States, or to prohibit their importation
in case he has reason to believe the result will be to injure, destroy or prevent the establishment of an American industry.""There you have one more illustration of the grasping ambition of burrocracy. More power, is the bur-rocracy's motto. Personal government, is the ideal. Government by law is not even a last resort.Just think of the possibilities of a broad creation of discretion such as that proposed! Certain commodities are shipped in large quantities into this country. Persons interested as manufacturers of the same commodities ask for a proclamation against the importations. The importers oppose the issuance of a ban. Speculators lay in a supply of the goods imported at low prices and suddenly the country is taken by surprise by issue
of a prohibition order that shuts out further importations, increases the value of goods already brought in, makes fortunes for those who bought up the supply, and starts rumors as to some one having an advance tip as to the best time to buy, in what quantities, what commodities
and at what prices.People who remember the rumors
of fortunes made in the stock market,
a few years back by men who got an early tip on a presidential note will see the danger of repetition of incidents that tend to shake confidence in government. Creating opportunities for that sort of thing is hardly the part of wisdom.The proper policy for America is to regard importations of articles that can be produced here as "unfair" to American producers. We should prevent such unfair competition by imposing an import duty at least equal to the difference in cost of production
here and in the country of lowest cost of production provided the latter country sells to us a quantity sufficient to be a menace to our home industry. But the rule of duty, the time and manner of its establishment, should be fixed by law, so that every person interested may have equal knowledge of the proposed action and the time when it is to become effective. The rights of importers and producers should be fixed by law and not be subject to the varying discretion of a president, especially one who believes in the "removal of all economic barriers."This discussion has dealt with the subject wholly from the standpoint of governmental policy. As a matter of constitutional law it is doubtful whether any pretext could be devised that would sustain even technically a delegation of power to the President to fix import duties.

A FATHER'S WISH.

I'd like to have him famous and I'd like to have him great;
I'd like to have him wise enough some day to rule the state.
I'd like to have that lad of mine succeed the world's renown.
And wear with honest modesty success' golden crown.
But rather than the fortune and the
fame that he may win
I'd like to have him take his little troubles with a grin.I hope that he'll be clever and I hope he'll prove his worth.
I've dreamed about his conquests since
the moment of his birth.
I hope he'll come to riches, for the good that he can do.
But I'd rather have him manly, and I'd rather have him true.
And when disappointments find him,
as I know they must some day
I'd like to have him meet them in a brave and cheerful way.When another beats him fairly, I don't want that son of mine
To belittle his opponent or to whimper
to a whimper;
I won't care what games he loses, if
he's kept his record true
And still has the grit to chuckle
though his body's black and blue.
I hope to see him happy, but when trouble mars his day
I'd like to have him take it in a manly sort of way.

ALBANIANS WILD WITH JOY WHEN YANKEES ARRIVE

Thousands of Children Parade, Waving American and Greek Flags.

OVERRUN DURING THE WAR

Troops of Seven Nations Cross—
Re-cross the Province; People Ask
America to Enable Them to Recover
Land Given to Others by Treaty.

By Associated Press.
GORITZA, Albania, May 5. (By Mail)—An American commission has been here to determine what the opinion of the population of Albania is with regard to their national future. The commission which arrived soon after an American Red Cross unit of 30 people under Major Glenford C. Bellis was received with great enthusiasm.

Two thousand pupils of the Greek schools waved Greek and American flags and cheered as the delegates entered Goritza. Albanian gendarmes attempted to prevent the pupils from manifesting their sentiments but were driven off by the French authorities. American supplies consisting of food, clothing, tools for repairing houses, farming implements and large amounts of medicines of which there is the greatest need are being distributed by the American Red Cross. The Army Food Mission doughboys are living up to their nickname by bringing in tons of American flour.

During the great war Albania was entered by the troops of seven nations. Three quarters of the country was held by the Austrians until last November. As a result of this 10 years' strife Albanian villages are heaps of ruins and the country denuded of everything of value. M. Venizelos claims Southern Albania for Greece because it contains 120,000 Greeks. However, demonstrations have occurred at Durazzo, Berat, Elbasan, Scutari and other Albanian centers in favor of Albanian unity and independence. Albania has been pro-Albanian throughout the war. The Albanian republic of Goritza which constitutes half of northern Epirus fought on the side of the Entente.

Owing to the Greek claims in southern Epirus and the Albanian demands for complete independence, the delimitation of the boundaries of Albania is a ticklish matter. Albanians have requested Americans to enable them to recover the lands distributed to others by the Berlin treaty and the treaty of 1912.

An interesting feature of the visit of the American mission was their meeting with the Albanian virgins. The betrothal of children is still customary in Albania but if, when the time for the marriage comes, the betrothed girl refuses the man and swears eternal virginity she may acquire property and have a man's privileges including that of associating with them voting and smoking.

"We don't want women's rights," one of the virgins explained to an American delegate. "We already have them in Albania."

RHEUMATISM LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poisons Start to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

Every druggist in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer in this vicinity that if two bottles of Allen's the sure conqueror of rheumatism does not stop all agony reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allen's has been tried and tested for years and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and pitiable and where the patient was helpless.

Allen's relieves at once. Immediately after you start to take it the good work begins. It searches out the uric acid deposits dissolves the secretions and drives rheumatism poison out of the body through the kidneys and bowels.

It's marvelous how quickly it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two days and even in cases where the suffering is most painful all traces disappear in a few days.

Mr. James H. Allen the discoverer of Allen's who for many years suffered the tortures of acute rheumatism desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allen's definitely conquers their worst of all diseases and he has instructed the Connellsville Drug Co. to guarantee it in every instance.—Adv.

FUTURE OF GERMANY FORECAST BY STORKS WHICH DO BATTLE IN NEST OVER AMERONGEN CASTLE

AMERONGEN, May 17. (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—The people of Amerongen, old-fashioned in their ideas, have been given recently what they regard as a token of the future of Germany.

Two storks every year make their nest on a tower of Amerongen castle where the former German emperor is staying. This year the female stork returned alone and built her nest. Soon came three male storks but all were beaten off with violent peckings. Two days later a lone male stork arrived and he too was accorded a hostile reception. However he hovered about perseveringly and fought off a fourth. The combat was watched with intense interest by the occupants of the castle among them the two Hohenzollerns. Next day the male stork shared the nest with the female on the nest from which the eggs had been ejected. The two birds appeared quite happy. Superstitious villagers compare the non appearance of the male stork after the winter absence with the disappearance of the erstwhile emperor from Germany after the war. The first woosers of the widowed female stork are likened to the various parties which tried to fill the place of the former imperial ruler and were rejected. The persevering male stork is taken as the emblem of the German people determined to become their own rulers. The last fight of the male storks is said to represent the struggle of the German nation to shake off the Bolsheviks. The ejection of the eggs from the nest is assumed to mean the casting out of all that belonged to the old imperial system of rule while the happy outcome of contented family life in the nest is looked on as the portent of the happy future of Germany.

Pieces of Eight

Being the Authentic Narrative of a Treasure Discovered in the Bahamas Islands in the Year 1903—Now First Given to the Public.

Here, a short distance from the bank, on some slightly ascending rocky ground, under the spreading shade of something like a stretch of woodland, Charlie, several years ago, had built a rough log shanty for his camp—one of two or three camps he had thus scattered for himself up and down the "out islands," where nearly all the land is no more, and so every man's land. The particular camp at which we now arrived he had not visited for a long time.

Here Tom brought us our dinner and the dark began to settle down upon us, thrillingly lovely, and full of strange, desolate cries of night creatures from the mangrove swamps that surrounded our little oasis for miles. Sailor lay at our feet, dreaming of tomorrow's duck. His master's thoughts were evidently in the same direction.

"How are you with a gun?" he asked, turning to the boy.

"Oh, I won't brag. I had better wait till tomorrow. But, of course, you will have to lend me a gun."

"I have a beauty for you—just your weight," replied Charlie, his face beaming as it did only at the thought of his guns, which he kept polished like jewels and guarded as jealously as a violinist his violin, or an Arab his harem.

Dawn was just breaking as I felt Charlie's great paw on my shoulder next morning. He was very serious. For a moment, as I sat up, still half asleep, I thought he had news of Tobias. But it was only dusk.

I was scarcely afeel when Tom arrived with breakfast, and in a few minutes we had shouldered our guns and were crossing the half mile of peaty waste that divided us from the marl lakes. Ahead of us, the crew were carrying the skulls on their shoulders, and very soon we were each seated in regulation fashion on a canvas chair in front of our respective skulls, with our guns across our knees and a negro behind us to do the poling.

Charlie went ahead, with Sailor standing in the bow quivering with excitement. The necessity of absolute silence, of course, had been impressed upon us all by the most severe of all sportsmen. Tom (who was poling too) and I understood that our job, and also that of my companion, was to stand behind one mangrove copse after another till we had got on the other side of a quaking flock of teal—which might then be expected to take flight in Charlie's direction and rush by him in a terrified wildfowl. This not very easy feat of stalking we were able to accomplish, thereby winning Charlie's immense approval and putting him in a splendid temper for the rest of the day; for, as the wild cloud swept over him, he was able to bring down no less than seven. Like a true sportsman, in telling the story afterward to John Saunders' snuggery, he averred that the number was nine!

The days that now followed for a week might be said to be accurate copies of that first day. But they were none the less delightful for that—for there is a sameness that is far indeed from monotonous—though I will confess that, for my own taste, toward the week-end the carnage of duck began to partake a little of that latter quality. Still, Charlie and Sailor were so happy that I wouldn't have let them suspect that for the world.

Besides, I had my wonderful young friend, to whom I grew daily more attached. I found myself feeling drawn to him as I can imagine a young father is drawn to a young son; and sometimes I seemed to see in his eyes the suggestion of a confidence he was on the edge of making me—a whimsical, pondering expression, as though wondering whether he dare to tell me or not.

"What is it, Jack?" I asked him for once when, early in our acquaintance, we had asked him what we were to call him. He had answered with a laugh: "Oh, call me Jack—Jack Harkaway. That is my name when I go on adventures. Tell me your adventure names. I don't want your prosaic everyday names." "Well," I had replied, entering into the lad's humor, "my friend here is Sir Francis Drake, and I, well—I'm Sir Henry Morgan."

"What is it, Jack?" I repeated. "No!" he replied, "I like you ever so much—and I wish I could; but I mustn't."

"Somebody else's secret again?" I ventured.

"Yes!" he nodded. "This time it's mine, too. But—some day perhaps, who knows?" He broke off in boyish confusion.

"All right, dear Jack," I said, patting his shoulder, "take your own time. We're friends anyway."

"That we are," responded the lad, with a fine glow.

I mustn't be too hard on Charlie, for Charlie had another object in his trip besides duck. As a certain poet brutally puts it, he had anticipated also "the hunting of man." In addition, though it is against the law of those Bahama Islands, he had promised me a flamingo or two for decorative purposes. However, flamingoes and Tobias alike kept out of gunshot and, as the week grew toward its end, Charlie began to grow a little restive.

"It looks," he murmured one evening, as we had completed our fourteenth meal of roast duck, and were musing over our after-duck cigars, "it looks as if I am not going to have a"

"MELTING POT" Praised by Great Americans, Past and Present

IT is doubtful if any play has received such endorsements as those accorded "The Melting Pot," which is to be heard here during the Chautauqua. Some of these comments, briefly stated, follow:

"A Great Play; A Great Play," Theodore Roosevelt; "A Great Service to America," Jane Addams; "The Feast of a Genius," Oscar S. Straus; "A Real Inspiration," Brand Whitlock; "A Play of Wide Human Sympathy," Augustus Thomas; "Nothing Spiritually Finer," Chicago Tribune; "A Strong Play," New York Herald; "The Theme is Big," New York Tribune; "A Play You Will Remember All Your Life," Chicago American; "Oh Upon a Troubled Sea," Edward A. Steiner; "Has a Tremendous Appeal," Frederick C. Howe.

use for this."

He had taken a paper from his pocket. It was a warrant with which he had provided himself, empowering him to arrest the said Henry P. Tobias, or the person passing under that name, on two counts: First, that of sedition practices, with intent to spread treason among his majesty's subjects, and, second that of willful murder on the high seas.

Charlie put the warrant back into his pocket and gazed disgustedly across the creek, where the loveliest of young moons was rising behind a fringe of the homeless, barbaric brush.

"There was never such a place in the world," he asserted, "to hide in, or get lost in—or to starve in. I have often thought that it would make the most effective prison in the world."

The young moon rose and rose, while Charlie sat in the dust of our shanty, like a meditative mountain, saying nothing, the glowing end of his cigar occasionally blurring at the circumference of his face.

"I'll get him, all the same," he said presently, coming out of a sort of trance, in which, as I understood later, his mind had been making a geographical survey of our neighborhood, going up and down every creek and corner on a radius of fifty miles.

So we sought our respective cots; but I had scarcely begun to undress when a foolish accident for which I was responsible happened: an accident that might have had serious consequences, and which, as a matter of Neglecting everything a man should do to his gun when he is finished with it for the day, I had left two cartridges in it, left the trigger on the hair-trigger of eternity, and other courtesies for which Charlie presently, and quite rightly, upbraided me with profanity. In short, my big toe tripped over the beast as it stood carelessly against the wall of my cabin, and, as it fell, I received the contents in the fleshy part of my shoulder.

The explosion brought the whole crew out of their shanty, in a state of gesticulating nature and, as Charlie, growling like a bear, was helping to bring first aid, suddenly our young friend Jack—whose romantic youth preferred sleeping outside in a hammock slung between two palm trees—put him aside.

"I know better how to do this than you, Sir Francis," he said, laughing. "Let's have a look at your medicine chest, and give me the list quick."

So Jack took charge and acted with such confidence and skill—finally blinding up my wound, which was but a slight one—that Charlie stood by dumbfounded and with a curious soft look in his face which I didn't understand till later.

Then Jack looked up for a moment and caught Charlie's wondering look; and it seemed to me that he changed color and looked frightened.

"Sir Francis is jealous," he said; "but I've finished now. I guess you'll sleep all right after that dose I gave you. Good night. . . ." And he slipped away.

Jack had proved himself a practiced surgeon and, as he predicted, I slept well—so well and so far into next morning that Charlie at last had to wake me.

"What do you think?" were his first words.

"Why, what?" I asked, sitting up and wincing from my wounded shoulder.

"Our young friend has skipped in the night! Gone off on that little nigger sloop that dropped in here yesterday afternoon, I guess."

"You don't mean it?"

"No doubt of it—I wonder whether you've had the same thought as I had. You know I always said there was a mystery about that boy? Did you notice the way he bound your shoulder last night?"

"What of it?"

"Did you ever see a man bind a wound like that?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean simply that the mystery about our Jack Harkaway was just this: Jack Harkaway was no boy at all—but just a girl; a trick of a dare-devil girl!"

CHAPTER V.

Better Than Duck.

Webster's discovery—if it was—of "Jack Harkaway's" seemed so far plausible in that it accounted not only for much that had seemed mysterious about him and his manner, but also (though this I did not mention to Charlie) it accounted for certain dim feelings of my own, of which, before, I had been scarcely conscious.

But we were not long left to continue our speculations, being presently interrupted by the arrival of exciting news in the form of a note from Father Serapion.

Father Serapion's note simply confirmed his conjecture that it was Tobias who had bought rum at Hebrides Point and that he was probably somewhere in the network of creeks and marl lagoons in our neighborhood. Charlie thought the news over.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," he said presently. "I'm going to leave you here—and I'm going to charter the sponger out there. Turner's sound has two outlets; this and Goose river, ten miles down the shore. Now, if Tobias is inside here he can only get out either down here or down Goose river. I am going down in the sponger to the mouth of Goose river, to keep watch there, and you must stay where you are and keep watch here. Between the two of us a week will starve him out."

So it was settled, and presently Charlie went along with two of his best guns and Sailor, in the rowboat, and I saw him no more for a week.

At the end of the week the wind was blowing strong from the west and the tides ran high. About noon we caught sight of triumphant sails making up the river. It was Charlie back again.

"Got him!" was all he said, as he rowed ashore.

Sailor was with him in the rowboat, but I noticed that he was limping, going on three legs.

"Yes!" said Charlie. "It's lucky for Tobias he only got Sailor's foot, or, by the living God I'd have stood my trial for manslaughter, or whatever they call it. It'll soon be all right, old man," he said, taking Sailor's wounded paw in his hand, "soon be all right."

Sailor wagged his tail vigorously, to show that a gunshot through one of his legs was a mere nothing.

"Yes!" said Charlie, as we sat at lunch in the shanty, under the tumbling trees, "we've got him safe there under ducks all right; chained up like a booby. If he can get away, I'll believe in the devil."

"Won't you tell me about it?" I asked.

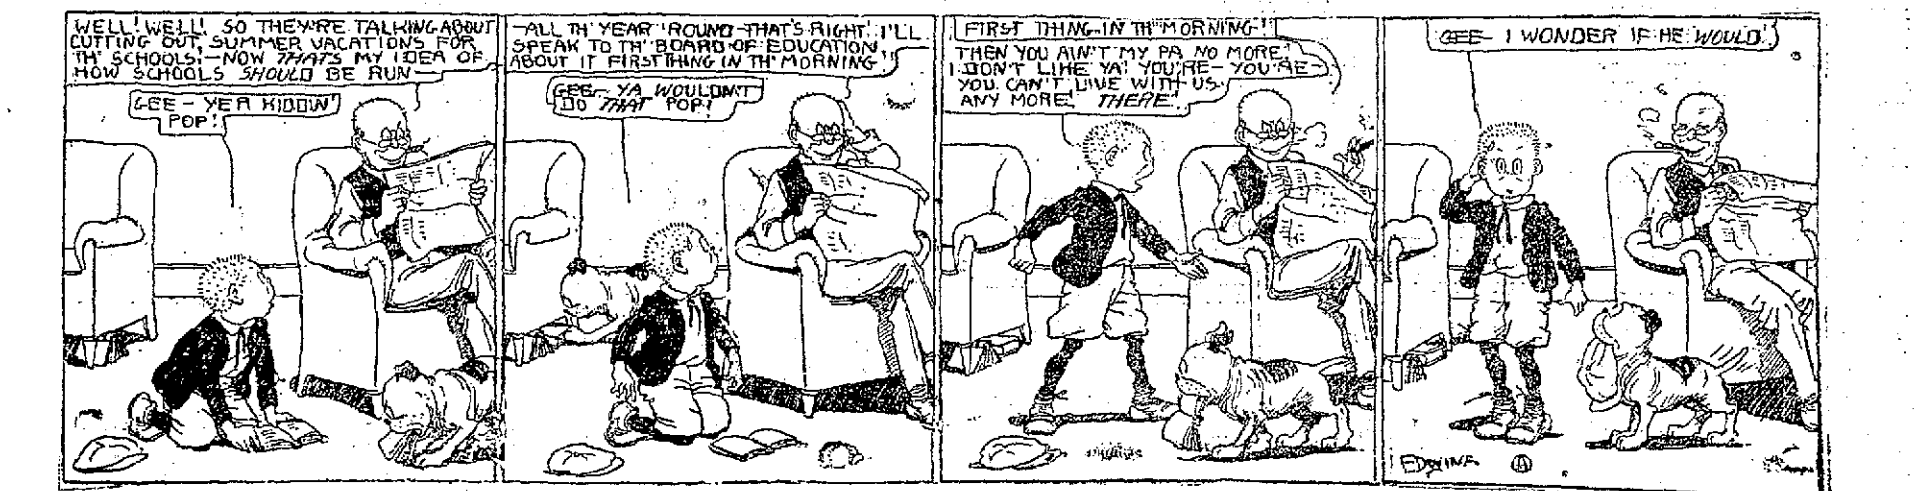

"Not much to tell; too easy altogether. I waited a couple of days at the mouth of Goose river. Then I got tired and left the sponger with the captain and two or three men, while I went up the river with a couple of guns and Sailor, and a man to pole the skiff—just for some duck-shooting, you know. We lay low for two days on the marshes and then Sailor got sniffing the wind one morning, as if there was something around he didn't care much for. He grew more and more excited and, at last, as we neared a certain mangrove copse to which all the time he had been pointing, he barked two or three times and I let him go. Poor old fellow!"

MORE RED BLOOD AND STEADIER NERVES FOR RUN DOWN PEOPLE

The World Demands, Strong, Vigorous,
Keen-Minded, Men and Women

It has been said of Americans that they work their habits over time.

Many become nervous and inefficient by overwork. By worry, despondency, social affairs, robbing brain and body of needed rest; excessive use of tobacco, indulgence in strong alcoholic drink—excesses of every kind that burn up the vital powers—so necessary in these trying times to make both men and women fit to be of help to themselves and others.

It is time to be temperate in all things. The man or woman with impaired nerves caused by impoverished blood lacks vigor, the ambition, the endurance and the keen mind of those who avoid excesses.

Timidity, despondency, fear, trembling hands, want of confidence and even cowardices, are due in a large measure to abused nerves. People with plenty of red blood, courage and strong, healthy nerves have no desire to shirk work and lean on others for guidance and support.

There is hardly a nerve-shattered man or woman (unless of an organic disease) in America today who cannot become alert and clear in mind; vigorous and energetic in body in a very few weeks, and at trifling cost.

To become strong and ambitious, to feel that work is not drudgery; to have steady nerves, abundance of red blood and power of endurance; to be not only a man but a man now, a superman, you must take seven tablets of Bio-Ten every day for seven days—and take them faithfully.

Take two after each meal and one at bedtime and after seven days take one only after meal until the supply is exhausted. Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if your nerves are not twice as steady as before; if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen-minded, the pharmacist who dispensed the tablets to you will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

Bio-Ten is without doubt the grandest remedy for nervous, rundown, weak, anemic men and women ever offered direct through druggists and it is not at all expensive. All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—ask many packages.
